Has Good Cotton

M. C. Wilkerson, who resides in the Victoria community, brought in a stalk of cotton Saturday which had 50 bolls and 26 squares, which was the tallest stalk we ever saw.

Mr. Wilkerson says he has ten acres of mighty good cotton and if nothing happens he will make at least eight bales. It is just beginning to open. He says he has not used any of Ran McCollough and George Morris' boll weevil catchers but has a boll weevil killer of his own. Competition is the life of trade.

Agriculture Dept.
Mobile Laboratory
Here Monday

To Test Sample
Commodities In Community

The Alabama Department of Agriculture is making use of two mobile laboratories to spot test food, drugs, cosmetics, gasoline and kerosene. Administering the laws dealing with these items is one of the functions of this department.

For this purpose the Department maintains a central laboratory in Montgomery for analyzing samples of the commodities to assure compliance with the laws which are designed to protect the consumer.

This laboratory has reached a high standard in the nation but the need for bringing the laboratory closer to the point of sample collection has long been recognized. To meet this need the Department has acquired two mobile laboratory units and have placed them into operation by sending them to various points in the state for spot checking of the commodities. One of these units will be in Elba on the courthouse square Monday, August 9 from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. and will check samples in Elba that have been collected by the authorized inspectors of the department. They will be in Opp 3 to 5 p. m. of the same day and in Brantley Wednesday, August 11th from 9 to 10.

Sammie Blue Is Awarded American
Legion Scholarship

To Attend Alabama
College, Montevallo
Next Semester

Miss Sammie Blue, daughter of Mrs. Sam Blue, has been awarded the National President's scholarship, given by the American Legion, amounting to $600 for the year 1948-49. Culver Post No. 42, American Legion, entered Miss Blue's name as a candidate for the award and she was selected from a group of six applicants.

This is quite an honor as there are only ten girls in the United States to receive this scholarship, two girls in each area, ours being the Southeastern area (thirteen states).

Some of the requirements of eligibility to receive this scholarship are she must be a daughter of a deceased veteran; and qualifications are based on leadership, personality, recommendations, etc. Miss Blue's qualifications were highly acceptable to the appointing committee.

The members of Culver post 42 have taken a very personal interest in the case and spared no effort to see it through. They are to be commended for the part they played in getting the scholarship.

Miss Blue is very popular among the young people of the community and she is receiving many congratulations from her friends. She is planning to attend Alabama College, Montevallo the coming year.

Service Connected
Vets Get Raise
In Compensation

Maj. D. S. Bryan, Coffee County Service Commissioner, asks the Clipper to state that there has been considerable misunderstanding concerning the increase in veteran's compensation in order to clarify the matter.

Major Bryan says the increase in compensation applies only to service connected veterans who have disabilities amounting to 50 per cent or more and who have dependents, and that the increase is solely to provide for the veteran's dependents.

The law says that any veteran whose service-connected disability is rated at 60 per cent will draw a minimum of $82.80 per month. The increase does not apply to non-service-connected disability.

County Vet Farmers
Visit Wiregrass
Experiment Station

See Result Of Feed
Experiment For
Hogs And Cattle

On July 29th and 30th, 450 on-the-farm veteran trainees with their teachers visited the Wiregrass experiment station according to James F. Martin, head teacher. Veterans Vocational Agriculture for the county.

Mr. J. P. Wilson, Station Superintendent, and his staff showed these farmers some of the work being done at the station. For several years the station has been carrying on experiments aimed at providing sufficient feed to produce finished hogs with a minimum amount of labor and other expense. In 1947 a series of farm crops were grown that involved extra early, early, and late born plus runner peanuts. A total of 23,464 pounds of pork was produced from this experiment with an average yield of 518 pounds per acre. In the first trial the extra early, early, and late corn in combination with runner peanuts, furnished a finishing ration in the field from June to April.

Other experiments of interest were those with lupine. Mr. Wilson states that peanuts following lupines gave a greater increase in yield than any other crop grown following this legume. In his lecture he also emphasized the importance of potash fertilizers for cotton land following peanuts that had been harvested for several years.

A large number of other farmers also visited the station last week and were accompanied by the regular vocational agriculture teachers and the County Agent.

Mr. L. L. Sellers, assistant supervisor of Vocational Agriculture for Southeast Alabama said that over 3500 veteran on-the-farm trainees will visit this Experiment Station during this summer from ten surrounding counties.

As a result of these field trips and the combined efforts of the teaching staff, considerable progress has been noted in the veterans on-the-farm training program. Over 2,175 acres of hybrid corn were planted by veterans this year. Much progress has been made in land utilization and soil conservation, with an increased acreage in permanent pastures and perennials.

Watch Out For Profit Stealing Screwworm

Each year Alabama livestock producers have to keep on the watchout for profit stealing screwworms.

Every summer they come to Alabama from Florida by natural migration, and often they are trucked in ahead of migration.

Already this year they have been trucked into Sumpter County. From here and several other points of arrival they will spread to other sections of the state until cold weather kills them.

Screwworms are painful to animals as they feed on live tissue rather than dead. Very often screwworms cause so much pain and damage the animals are seriously injured or killed.

To control screwworms, W. H. Gregory, API extension livestock specialist, says to examine livestock every week if possible and treat all wounds with smear 62.
